STATISTICS

SWITZERLAND'S
INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION

2009

INTRODUCTION

This leaflet is divided into two main sections:

- Statistics on Swiss official development assistance
- Use of funds dedicated to international cooperation by the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) and the State Secretariat for Economic Affairs (SECO, Economic Cooperation and Development Division)

Official development assistance (ODA): clarifications

- Official development assistance (ODA) is defined on the international level as the total of all financial flows to developing countries and territories (currently 152) and to multilateral development organizations (i) from the public sector; (ii) with the promotion of economic development and welfare as its main objective; (iii) at concessional financial terms.
- The performances of donor countries are usually compared on the basis of the ODA percentage referring to the gross national income (GNI).
- To ensure the comparability and transparency of ODA contributions of its 23 member countries, the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) of the OECD has established comprehensive statistical reporting directives to regulate the reporting procedures. These rules define the activities and the contributions that are ODA eligible and are being periodically updated.
- Swiss ODA contributions contain mainly the SDC and the SECO budgets, the two organs which are commissioned to execute the Federal Act on International Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Aid. Other federal offices as well as 25 cantons and about 200 communes also participate in Switzerland's international cooperation. In conformity with DAC's reporting rules, Switzerland also declares since several years bilateral debt relief measures (within the framework of the Paris Club) as well as the costs related to asylum seekers from developing countries during their first year of stay in Switzerland.

Technical notes

- Not all annual SDC and SECO (Economic Cooperation and Development Division) expenditures that appear in the Confederation account are automatically reproduced in the ODA statistics. Certain statistical adjustments are made in order to comply with the international directives (not included are disbursements intended for countries that are not on the list of developing countries, different notification method for certain multilateral contributions).
- The financial involvement of the SDC and SECO in the enlargement of the European Union (EU) is not reflected in detail in this leaflet (see www.contribution-enlargement.admin.ch).

In 2009, the volume of official development assistance (ODA) rose by 11.9% over 2008. This growth is mainly due increased costs for asylum seekers originating from developing countries, as well as debt relief for Togo. Expressed as a percentage of gross national income (GNI), ODA increased from 0.44% in 2008 to 0.47% in 2009.

Private aid is provided by Swiss NGOs and other non-profit organizations and foundations for projects and programmes in developing countries. These private donations, which are largely collected directly from the population, represented an average of CHF 57 per head in 2008. They have strongly increased over the years, from 0.06% of GNI to 0.09% in 2008.

Graph 1
Switzerland's performance compared with other countries
 2009 (ODA in % of GNI)

Preliminary data published by OECD/DAC 14th April 2009 for all DAC countries.

Provisional data of OECD's Development Assistance Committee (DAC) show that total ODA of the 23 member countries in 2009 reached almost the same level as in 2008 in real terms (120 billion US$). Only five countries have exceeded the ODA target of 0.7% set back in 1970 by the United Nations. With its ratio ODA/GNI of 0.47%, Switzerland ranks actually 10th, winning 2 ranks in comparison to its 2008 stand.

^a Provisional figures for 2009.

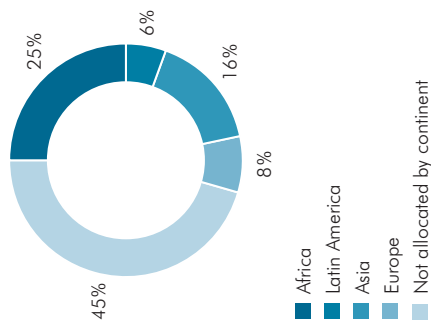

In 2009, the assistance to asylum seekers and debt relief measures changed again the breakdown of ODA. The share of SDC and SECO (without debt) in ODA continued to decline in 2009 (68%) in comparison to 2008 (71%) and 2007 (75%).

The distribution between bilateral ODA (76%) and multilateral ODA (24%) remained stable as compared to 2008.

Graph 3
Breakdown of bilateral ODA by continent 2009

See details:
www.sdc.admin.ch/en/Home/About_SDC/Facts_and_figures/ODA/Bilateral_ODA

The statistical adjustments introduced from 2003 onwards (inclusion of debt relief and costs for asylum seekers originating from developing countries) have affected persistently the breakdown of aid categories.

- The share of ODA attributed to the development cooperation activities of SDC and SECO has decreased from 60% in the early 2000s to 50% in 2009.
- The share of humanitarian aid in ODA has diminished from 18% to 12% in 2009.
- The share of the SDC's and SECO cooperation with the East remained at 7%.
- The other contributions from other federal offices, cantons and communes, including debt relief and costs for asylum seekers, represented in 2009 32% of the total (13% in 2000).

As in the past, Swiss bilateral ODA is principally intended for low-income countries and concentrated mainly in Africa and Asia (around 41% of total in 2009). Developing countries of Latin America and Europe absorbed together 14% of total bilateral ODA.

The amounts not distributed by continent (45%) amalgamate SDC's programme contributions to Swiss NGOs and to the ICRC, costs of assistance to asylum seekers, contributions to research or training institutes, mandates for thematic advice, as well as operating costs and logistics in Switzerland.
